

Last Sunday evening we had the pleasure of taking tea with our friend Wadsworth, editor of the Argus, at the Teegarden House, in Laporte. The Teegarden still flourishes and makes newspaper editors happy.

Miss Munday's Concert.

The following notice of Miss Munday's concert, given in this city on Wednesday night of last week, is copied from the Laporte Argus. The local editor of the paper, Mr. Wile, was present, and he being an accomplished musician, is capable of critical notice.

"We had the pleasure of attending a concert given last night by Miss Munday, assisted by the best musical talent of Plymouth, Warsaw, and Laporte. It was given at Balcony Hall to a large and appreciative audience. We regret that the late hour prevents our giving the concert an extended notice, but we would not be doing justice to the participants, did we not mention the very excellent singing of our accomplished vocalist, Miss Munday, whose selections were characterized by good taste and fine execution. The singing of Mrs. Burket and Miss Piper among the ladies and Messrs. Beem, Capron Edwards, Wood and Reynolds was very fine and enjoyable. We have never heard a better rendition of 'With Verdure Clad,' by an amateur, than that given by Miss Piper. The tableaux, two in number, were also good. Little Emma Munday, in 'Comin' Thro' the Rye' was charming. The song of Mr. Woods was encored and in response he sang 'My Father's Half Bushel,' a well known old song. The piano playing by the ladies was also very good. Misses Dickson, Beals and Becker attended to that part.

We can add that the music was enjoyed by all who heard it.

Senator Morton thinks that it is unjust to denounce members of Congress as thieves, because they voted to increase their pay; but he opposed that action, and still contends that it was wrong. He says that every time the pay of members of Congress has been increased, past services were included.

The Twenty-Second Annual Fair of the Laporte County Agricultural Association will be held in Laporte, beginning Sept. 29th and ending Oct. 2d. The exhibition will probably be the most complete in every department of any ever held in Laporte.

While in Laporte on Monday we had the pleasure of meeting our old friends, Powell, Major and Taylor, of the Herald. They were enjoying good health and raking in the greenbacks for job work and advertising. The circus advertising has been a source of considerable profit to them this summer. Whatever the Herald may do, the editors of that paper are decidedly in favor of Senator Morton for our next President.

The editor of the South Bend Union ventures the opinion that the Michigan Central Railroad Company will extend their branch road, which is now in operation from Niles to South Bend, to this place, as soon as it can get $200,000 donated by South Bend and Plymouth. They will build it without the $200,000 if they can't get it; but the donation would hurry things up amazingly.

The people of South Bend and Plymouth have about as much as they can wag under at present. South Bend with their waterworks, and Plymouth with city ordinance printing.

The Bourbon Mirror has a word to say about our city council:

The Democrat and Republican object to having their bills for publishing the city ordinances cut down by the council. If the Republican states the case correctly, we do not see how the council can go back on an implied contract. The account may seem large to the members of the council, but they should remember that lawyers, physicians and others often charge and receive much larger sums for less actual labor. It is not often that country publishers get "fat jobs," and when they do, the very men who get the best paid for their services are most reluctant to allow them their just dues. Is that right?

The editor of the Mirror has had several years' experience in publishing a newspaper, and "knows how it is himself."

The following which we copy from the Winamac Republican, dated August 15th, is a strong reminder that safety demands that before descending into a well, it should be first proven that there is no foul air in it. A lighted candle let down to the bottom will tell the tale. If the light is extinguished a man's life would be unsafe:

KILLED BY DAMPS.—We learn that Moses King, living near Monterey, this county, and his son, both lost their lives by foul air in a well, on Saturday evening last. The father went down to make some repairs. After being in the well while his wife called to him when he answered he could not get the clevis unfastened, which was the last he heard him speak. Becoming alarmed his oldest son—aged about 13 years—was let down by a rope to see what was wrong and in a moment or two called that the rope was too short. Nothing more being heard the second son was started down, but after going a little ways, he screamed to be taken up, as he was smothering. This was done, and his wife alarmed uttered piercing screams which brought some neighbors to the spot, who immediately made preparations for getting the bodies out. The man who attempted to go down, had to be hauled back, and fainting after being taken out—They then burned out the foul air, and recovered the bodies.

Mr. King had been down in the well on Saturday morning and worked several hours. The damps had accumulated during the day. Mr. K. was a brother in law of Mr. Jacob Shoup.

EDUCATIONAL COLUMN.

Impure or unchaste language should never pollute our lips. In the fullness of youthful feelings there is a strong temptation to repeat the vulgar story, to recite the lascivious verse, or tell a smutty joke. Never do it. I could laugh at the double entendre, or the witty play upon words, or even at the grosser kinds of vulgar speech, but if they possess any culture they heartily despise the author of their merriment. Such jokes are well named smutty. You cannot touch smut without being soiled, so you cannot indulge in smutty jokes without a loss of purity. As such a habit must be dangerous, we find written in the moral law for our guidance, "Put away from thee a froward mouth, and perverse lips put far from thee."

Avoid the associations of the unchaste, for they are neither good society nor the society of the good. It is written, "Evil communications corrupt good manners." We insensibly imitate the manners, tastes and language of those by whom we are surrounded, being unaware of the silent influences which are thus shaping our characters. This idea is beautifully expressed in the moral law: "As in water, face answereth to face, so the heart of man to man." As surely as the still surface of the water mirrors all the features of the face, so surely shall the qualities of those with whom we associate, whether good or bad, be reflected in our hearts and lives. Not only is it unsafe to be in the society of the impure, but it is also perilous to your reputation to be seen in such company, if we aspire, at all, to enter the society of the good.

"The good needs fear no law—It is his safety, and the bad man's awe."

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:

A fine rain fell to-day. The corn crop is slightly injured by the dry weather.

There is a call for houses to rent here. Some gentlemen from Louisville, Ky., Cincinnati, O. and Indianapolis, have been here fishing for a few days, and have caught the nicest lot of fish taken from this lake for some time.

Railroad meeting to be held on the 29th for the purpose of raising stock. Let the citizens know that the company means business, and they are all right.

Rev. O. R. Beebe preaches his farewell sermon next Sunday. Success to him in his new field.

Rev. Mr. Shaw is to preach here on the same day.

Sunday school picnic at Marmont on the 28th. A good time is anticipated.

Dr. Jackson is about to open a drug store here, and says he will sell all kinds of drugs and medicines cheap for cash. His drugs are pure and fresh.

Rev. J. S. Atkinson will move here soon and take his old place in the store. Mr. Barnett Adamson is furnishing some nice beef every week which comes very handy about three times a day.

A DESPERATE ENCOUNTER.

A Convict in the Indiana State Prison Attacks the Deputy Warden with a Broad-ax.

The Desperado Shot and Killed.

MICHIGAN CITY, IND., Aug. 15.—This morning while Mr. Charles A. Manning, the Deputy Warden of the prison, and Mr. St. John, President of the Board of Directors, were alone in the guard room of the prison, Joseph Simpson, a prisoner, having armed himself with a cooper's broad-ax, a most murderous weapon, came into the room with the evident intent to murder the Deputy Warden. He at once advanced upon Mr. Manning, saying: "D—n you, I will kill you." The deputy drew his revolver and ordered the man from the room or he would shoot him; but the only response the prisoner made was an attempt to strike him with the ax, springing from side to side to avoid the pistol, and advancing upon the deputy, who still continued to order the man from the room on pain of being shot. At this juncture Mr. St. John, who could obtain no better weapon than an arm-chair, called to the deputy to hold on. He then aimed a blow at the prisoner with the chair, which unfortunately touched the deputy, who was somewhat in the rear of Mr. St. John at the time. The blow, however, fell upon the prisoner, but not with sufficient force to prevent his further advance, and recovering himself he rushed at the deputy, aiming a blow, when the deputy fired. Not daunted for an instant, the prisoner still advanced, when the deputy fired twice. Again mustering his final strength, the prisoner threw the ax with all his force, narrowly missing the deputy's head. The prisoner now fell back, and as he fell the deputy fired a fourth shot. The second shot was fatal, as was afterward discovered. No motive for the murderous attack is known, except that he was an escaped convict, and had an idea that Mr. Manning had reported him to the prison when he escaped. A coroner's jury was summoned, which returned a verdict in accordance with the facts, entirely exonerating Mr. Manning, the Deputy Warden, from all blame, he being driven to this extremity to preserve his own life and the discipline of the prison.

A perfect rush of job printing at the Republican office. Our prices and the quality of our work are unequalled.

The gent who has been exerting himself to injure us by basely circulating the report that our prices were higher than those of the Democrat has probably succeeded to some extent; but we can assure him that we have not attempted to retaliate. It is too small a business.

The economical city council of South Bend let a bridge building contract to John Hooper for $7,475 when Geo. Wells offered to do the same work $500 less.

MAJOR CALKINS, of Laporte, is favorably spoken of as the next Republican candidate for Congress, in Packard's district. He is a young gentleman of more than ordinary talents, and seems to be a favorite with the farmers. As we are not in the district it does not become us to dictate to those living in it, who shall represent them. At present there does not appear to be any chance for Mr. Packard to receive the nomination, and we do not know that he expects or desires it. The people are looking around for a candidate, and Major Calkins appears to be the choice of the farmers in Laporte county.

Mr. David Wile, local editor of the Laporte Argus, made us a call on Wednesday of last week. Mr. W. has furnished the Argus a lively column of local news each week for some time past; but we are sorry to learn that other business has caused him to cease his contributions to that paper.

HOMOEOPATHY.

E. W. Viets, Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon has permanently located in Plymouth. Dr. Vinal has rented him his residence on Michigan street, opposite H. G. Thayer's, and bespeaks for him as liberal patronage as he has received. The Doctor is well known to many of our citizens and comes well recommended. He can be found at the Parker House until Sept. 1st, when his office will be at his residence as above.
